

Asbestos found in all schools

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Carol Sager announced Monday that the results of a study of the level of asbestos in the Wilmington schools have been completed. According to the final report, all the schools, including the closed Boutwell School, have open areas of friable asbestos.

School committee Chairman Bob Peterson explained that state and federal regulations consider any level of exposed asbestos over one percent to be unacceptable.

Three different tests were done on the schools, he explained. The state conducted the first test which found many areas of piping and insulation that would have to be rewrapped and covered. Town Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds Roy McClanahan will be able to do this work throughout the summer. Dr. Sager told the school committee, in all the buildings but the Wildwood School. This last school poses additional problems because, according to School Business Manager Frank Antonelli, there is open asbestos on the ceilings as well as the pipes in the boiler room. To eliminate the asbestos on the ceiling would require encapsulating, a process that would seal off the entire building with plastic sheets while workers wearing oxygen masks spray the ceilings with a special kind of paint that would permanently enclose the asbestos. An outside firm would have to be hired to do this work, and it could cost up to $70,000. The school committee voted to open bids on the project right away.

A second test conducted by Briggs Engineering showed that the schools had low levels of asbestos which would be acceptable, Peterson explained. McClanahan saw the discrepancy in the two reports, and Briggs conducted a third test which concurred with the state's findings of more than one percent exposed asbestos in the schools.

Peterson said that according to Joe Duffy of Environmental Engineering, a firm that took still another look at the schools' asbestos situation, it may not cost as much as $70,000 to do the work on the Wildwood School as expected. Just painting the ceiling would harden the surface and keep asbestos materials from falling to the floor. Of course, he went on, they would have to keep a close watch on the ceilings, to ensure that the paint covering the asbestos doesn't flake and fall to the floor.

Another reason that the cost of the work on the Wildwood School may be reduced is because when the school was first built, the ceiling was installed in two layers. If the asbestos is on the surface layer (closest to the classroom), then the work will have to be done and could be a major expense. However, if the asbestos lies on the upper layer and there is no water damage, they may not have to do any work on that ceiling since the asbestos would be located in an area that would not be exposed to the children. If it lies in the upper layer and there is water damage, work would have to be done to repair the water damaged area because water passing through the roof would draw out any asbestos there.

According to Peterson, they are trying to determine now exactly where this asbestos is located in order to determine the cost of covering it.

Dr. Sager is currently working on backup plans to temporarily place Wildwood School students in other buildings if the encapsulation work is not completed by September as she hopes.

Scott Wheeler was given a lesson in hand signals by Safety Officer Bob Shelley during Bike Safety Day at the Wilmington High School parking lot on Saturday morning. The program included a riding test in an obstacle course, and a safety check of bicycle equipment.

Vining to continue rubbish collection

There will be no change in rubbish contractors in Wilmington. The contract for rubbish collection has again been awarded to Michael Vining of Medford, at an increased rate.

Vining has collected the rubbish for the past year, under a three-year contract. In April, he notified the town manager that he wanted to cancel the contract on June 30. The town had no recourse, because there was only a one year bond with the contract. Vining had been collecting the rubbish for $207,000 a year, but said he was losing money. One factor was that the Tewksbury dump had closed. Other dumps were both farther away and more expensive.

Rather than just let Vining negotiate an increase, the selectmen told Town Manager Buzz Stapeczynski to solicit bids.

Vining was again the low bidder, with a figure of $876,000 for three years. $277,000 for the first, $292,000 for the second and $307,000 for the third. SCA services bid $1,075,000, $338,000 first year, $358,000 second and $379 third. Stanley Roketenetz bid $1,391,000, $430,000 first, $469,000 second and $492,000 third.

The town manager said that a one-year performance bond would be required. A three-year bond would have eliminated smaller contractors from the bidding, resulting in much higher costs to the town.

Town Counsel to initiate action against contractor

The Pitt Construction Company accounts have been turned over to Alan Altman, town counsel, for proper action. Pitt Construction is the company that did the work on contracts three and six for the Wilmington sewer.

The motion, turning over the account, said in part: "Failure to complete contract No. 6, by Oct. 30, 1981. Unless Pitt starts within seven days and carries forth to completion, the town will exercise its rights - and will hold Pitt Construction Company responsible for all damages and losses."

In other action on June 16 the water commissioners have awarded a contract to Fay, Spofford and Thorndike to replace the two inch water mains in streets off Hathaway Acres and off Gowing Road. The firm was the lowest of three bidders for the job.

Fay, Spofford and Thorndike were slated to begin surveying for the water mains Monday, June 20, and to begin the actual replacement as soon as possible. The contract requires that a "resident engineer" be on the job while the work is being done.

Sixth grade students at Michele Caira's wedding

Michele Caira and Allan Nortonen are wed

Miss Michele Caira, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aldo Caira of 188 Chestnut St., Wilmington, became the bride of Allan Nortonen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nortonen of Fitchburg Road, Townsend on May 28. The Rev. Fr. Francis Mackin of St. Margaret's Church, Beverly Farms and the Rev. Laurie Braaten of the Second Congregationalist Church in Winchester officiated at the one o'clock double-ring ceremony at St. Thomas Church. James Profirio, friend of the bride, was soloist and organist. The clergy were attended by altar boys, Christopher Kane and Michael Wandell, students of the new Mrs. Nortonen. Michael Caira, brother of the bride, read the first reading from the Old Testament. Aldo Caira, Jr., brother of the bride, led the congregation in the responsorial psalm, and youngest brother Kevin Caira read the prayers of the faithful.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore an ivory Bianchi wedding gown original, fashioned in re-embroidered schiffli lace fabric, designed with a fitted bodice and A-line skirt. The gown was adorned with schiffli lace and attached was a cathedral train. Her bridal hat headpiece was accented with matching lace and silk illusion veiling. She carried a bouquet of pink and ivory roses, daisies, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Mrs. Jane Caira of Wilmington was matron of honor for her sister-in-law, wearing a sea mist taffeta long skirt and ivory crepe blouse accented with schiffli lace. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Marianne Caira of Lowell, sister-in-law of the bride; Miss Sheryl Everett of Wilmington and Mrs. Lynne Vaughn of North Reading, dear friends of the bride, wore similar gowns in sweet pea. They all carried bouquets of pink and ivory miniature carnations, roses, and baby's breath. Silk flowers adorned their hair.

Serving as junior bridesmaid for her aunt was Miss Jennifer Caira, 9, of Wilmington. She wore an ivory taffeta gown with a hoop skirt accented with pink ribbons and carried a small bouquet of flowers identical to the bride's.

Flower girl was Miss Angela Caira, 7, of Wilmington, niece and godchild of the bride. She was dressed similarly to the junior bridesmaid and carried a natural basket of spring flowers.

Dale Shaffer of Beeville, Texas, close friend of the groom served as best man. Ushers were Kenneth Caira of Lowell, brother of the bride; Ronald McFadden of Waterbury, Conn., nephew of the groom; and Santo Aurelio of Belmont, friend of the groom. The men wore traditional cut-away suits in grey. Dressed similarly was ring bearer Michael Caira, Jr., 4½, of Wilmington, nephew of the bride.

A gala reception followed the ceremony at the Sons of Italy Hall in Wilmington. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Caira chose a chiffon gown of cloudy orchid, while the groom's mother was attired in primrose pink. Both mothers carried single roses complementing their gowns.

Sister of the groom, Mrs. Elaine McFadden, presented the guest book to 240 relatives and friends from Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Virginia, Colorado, and Texas.

The bride, a graduate of the University of Lowell, is a sixth grade teacher at Wilmington's Shawsheen School. Pictured above is her class, who witnessed their teacher's wedding vows and applauded loudly as the couple approached their pews. The groom, a graduate of the Embury-Riddle Aeronautical University of Florida, who also attended the Emory School in Boston, is a freelance court reporter.

The newlyweds will live in North Billerica.

Plans are now being finalized for Wilmington's July 4th celebration, which will be getting underway in just two weeks.

A large part of the celebration includes five nights of dinners sponsored by local organizations. The Sons of Italy spaghetti supper will be held on June 29, and will cost $3.00 per person. The Rotary Club will offer a ham and bean supper on June 30 for $3.00 per person, followed on July 1 by the Knights of Columbus roast beef dinner, at $4.00 per person. The Lions Club roast pork dinner will be held on July 2, and will cost $4.00 per person, while the Kiwanis chicken barbecue on July 3 will be $5.00 per person.

The Knights of Columbus will hold a pancake breakfast on July 4. Tickets for this meal will cost $2 per person unless purchased together with the K of C roast beef dinner ticket, when they will be $1.00. The Minutemen will sponsor a pancake breakfast of their own on Saturday, July 2.

Tickets for all meals may be purchased now at July 4th Headquarters or from any member of the organization sponsoring the meal.

Kids' Day on the Common will be Sunday July 3 from 1 to 6 p.m. Events for children ages three through 12 will be held and will include:

Doll carriage parade, bike contest, sack race, beanbag toss, water balloons, musical chairs, 30 and 40 yard dash.

T-shirts and ribbons will be awarded to winners, and each child participating gets a free carnival ticket for each event he or she enters.

The annual Super Team athletic competition kicks off with a softball tournament at the Town Park on June 25, with the rest of the events on the common as follows:

Decorated hospital bed race on June 29; road race, June 30; tennis July 1, volleyball, horseshoes, croquet, July 2; quadrathlon, July 4 and the dunk tank June 29.

Ten local industries are slated to compete and trophies are awarded to winners in all events, with a major trophy going to the overall Super Team's point scorers. Industries must enter at least seven of the above nine events to compete for the Super Team title.

These events are also open to any Wilmington family or neighborhood teams and will be considered separate from the Super Team competition. Sign up now at the Fourth of July Headquarters.

As an added attraction the WHS Jazz Band will be performing on the common on July 3 and the Wilmington Spotlighters performing on July 4 at 6 p.m. The Wilmington Council of the Arts will again hold their craft fair and art work display in front of the high school on Saturday, July 2.

There will be a small fireworks display on June 30 at 9 p.m. and a spectacular showing on Sunday, June 3, also at 9. Concerts and the carnival run each night of celebration week.

Just a reminder: Advance sale carnival tickets (three for $1.00) are available now through June 29 at the following places:

July 4th Headquarters, Sweetheart Outlet Store, D and D Lock, Winston's Coffee Shop, Church Street Hardware and the Town Crier. After June 29, tickets will be .50 each.

Anyone who can volunteer time to help out at the carnival is urged to contact Joan Searfoss at July 4 Headquarters as soon as possible.

No principal yet

The school committee has completed interviewing candidates for the job of high school principal. Superintendent of Schools Dr. Carol Sager is currently preparing her recommendation for the principalship, which she will present to the school committee at their next regular meeting on Tuesday, June 28, at 7:30 p.m. at the Roman House. The committee plans to elect a new high school principal at this meeting. There were two days of interviews, Monday and Tuesday, June 20 and 21. On Monday the committee spoke to candidates Richard DeRosa, director of science for Wilmington Schools; William Fay, Wilmington West Intermediate School principal; and Harold Garrett, acting principal of Wilmington High School. They interviewed David Sweeney, assistant principal of Faboro High School; Wayne Ogden, house master of Lincoln Sudbury High School; and Joseph Connelly, Wilmington North Intermediate School principal, on Tuesday.

No cause found in sex discrimination case

A claim of sex discrimination against the town of Wilmington has been dismissed by the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD) for lack of probable cause.

The complaint was filed by Dorothy Charbonnier, now a resident of Charlestown. Formerly a resident of Auburn Avenue, Wilmington, she was a member of the Wilmington Traffic Supervisors. The traffic supervisors were released by the town in 1979, and replaced with crossing guards.

The complaint was relative to the hiring of police officers. Mrs. Charbonnier had taken the exam for police officer. The town appointed two officers in May, 1981.

In dismissing the case, the MCAD noted that the town had appointed the officers from the reserve officers list, in compliance with Chapter 31, Section 60 of the Mass. General Laws. Mrs. Charbonnier was not on that list.

Tewksbury

No matter how it's read, the answer should be 'yes!'

The question should read: Do you want to maintain your current level of town services, or do you want to cut deeper?

Maybe it should read: Would you rather dig into your pocket for an extra $10 a month, or sacrifice the education of your children and the protection of your family?

But, that's not how the question reads. It reads: "Shall the Town of Tewksbury be allowed to exempt the amounts required to pay for the bond issue for the high school addition." Another one reads similar, but only for the sewerage project bond.

The box to the immediate left of those questions, the one labelled "yes", should receive more X's than the one labelled "no" on Saturday, June 25. And here's why.

On this hot day in June Tewksbury finds itself almost on the brink of financial disaster. It has appropriated money to pay for those sewer and high school bonds in addition to funding a budget that will maintain current service levels for fiscal 1984, a move that has put the fiscal 1984 town budget about $1 million over what can be raised under the limits of Proposition 2½.

Just as in a family budget, the town realizes that payments on loans has priority, moneywise. But, if the bonds are paid first, as they should be, there will be inadequate funds to provide current service levels into fiscal 1984.

We've already seen some service level reductions — as has most every other city and town in the state — since the passage of the tax limiting Proposition 2½.

The North Street fire station has been closed, due to lack of funds to pay vacation fill-ins. A fire truck has been sitting with a disabled engine for 18 months, with no available money to repair it.

The water department, predictably, couldn't meet the town's growing consumption demands and had to turn to neighboring towns for assistance, a practice that has been around for some time. And it's no secret that the department of public works has been taking cuts since the days of Prop. 2½'s predecessor, the four percent cap.

The school system has been hard hit by budget cuts and over 100 layoffs. Even some of the school buildings themselves are starting to show the strain of going without proper maintenance — an account that has been underfunded — for the last few years.

Hosts needed for exchange students

Lorraine and Louis Brozyna of Boutwell Street, Wilmington, may be hosting a pretty big party about the middle of July. Their home is across from the tennis courts.

They were hosts to such a party last year. At that time there were about 50 people. This year Lorraine is expecting about 150. Louis will have the job of cooking hot dogs and hamburgers and providing such items as watermelons.

Lorraine is a hostess for some young Spanish people who will be visiting the United States in an exchange program. It is a program which has been going on for some years. Spanish young people visit the United States and young people from this country visit Spain, where they are guests in private homes.

It is an exchange courtesy. The young people (or their parents) are responsible for the transportation and spending money. All other costs are paid by the host families.

As much as possible, the youngsters are expected to earn their own transportation. Each youngster going to Spain spends two weeks in the host country.

In Wilmington in July there will be 30 Spanish young people.

Lorraine is now looking for Wilmington families who will help to host them.

Arrangements have been made for English classes in Wilmington High School four days a week. Afternoons will be spent with the host families, and there are to be jointly conducted trips to the seashore, the White Mountains, or other places.

Lorraine's four youngsters spent two weeks in Spain in December and January last winter. Three of the four paid their own way. All left home on the second day after Christmas and were in Spain for the Spanish holidays, many of which are religious in nature. All traveled to the mountains and to the seashore with their host families.

Lorraine is now looking forward to the Fourth of July program in Wilmington. The young people from Spain already know of the program. They look ahead with anticipation to an opportunity to join Wilmington's celebration of the country's independence.

All Lorraine needs is some homes. She has homes at this time for 20 youngsters. Only 10 more need to be housed.

Volunteers may call 658-3139.

The police department has also suffered with cuts in their over time account, a cut that has left shifts shorthanded on more than one occasion. There's nothing more frustrating than to hear your call for police assistance will be delayed because all available cruisers are tied up with prior calls. And that's not scare tactic — it has happened!

If the exemption fails, these departments are going to be asked to take it on the chin again during a Tuesday, June 28 special town meeting.

Well, the simple fact of the matter is, these departments — representing the major spending areas in town — can't afford to take another wallop on a chin that has been battered around for the last few years.

These departments simply can't be hit again. Tewksbury hasn't gotten smaller. There hasn't been a mass exodus from the town, not yet anyway.

On the contrary. The town is growing. There are 300 condos planned for Shawsheen Street. Another 102 condos are being built on Main Street. Construction of a $40 million office park in North Tewksbury just started. Housing subdivisions are still being built and more are in the planning stages. Construction of single family homes on several single lots can still be seen.

All this growth and a reduction in service?

Yes, growth does bring in more taxes, but the buildings have to be constructed first. The first phase of 60 condos on Shawsheen Street are adding already, but there are more phases to come. The 102 Main Street units are still being built. The office park was just started.

If the exemption fails, the recommendations for cuts are: close the North Street fire station for good and the South station for eight weeks; cut 30 — count them — 30 more teachers; cut three to six policemen; and cut four to six DPW workers.

However, if the exemptions pass then the cost to the average taxpayer will be $120 to $130 a year, or about $10 a month. Even if the exemptions pass, the town will still be taxing at a rate lower than the maximum 2.5 percent of full and fair market value allowed under Prop. 2½.

The Proposition 2½ law allows communities to exempt bonds. Even the law's sponsors have said that they don't want to see communities discontinue bonding much needed capital improvements because of tax limits.

The phase one sewer program and high school addition were much needed capital improvements in Tewksbury. And it's not as though voters okayed those projects knowing full well they may not be able to afford them and a respectable amount of town services at the same time.

Voters approved the projects before Prop. 2½ came into law. But, because the actual bonds were issued after the law went into effect, the law considers the exemption a post 2½ one.

A "yes" vote on the two bonding questions is not only indicated, but highly desirable. The sewer program is now starting to make a financial return to the town. All it took was a simple extension of the sewer line — jointly funded with private industry it may be added — and Metropolitan Life Insurance Company is putting up a large office building in North Tewksbury with the promise of many more to come.

The sewer is providing a financial hope, as well as much needed improvements in public health, to the town.

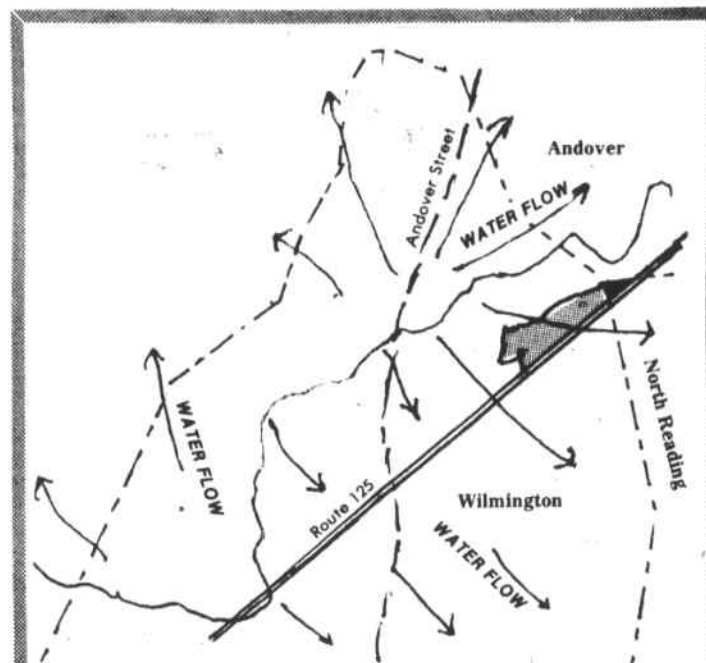

Even though the town faced an ultimatum of either building a new high school addition or losing its accreditation, a new high school facility in town was surely needed. And now many residents as well as students are proud of the new learning center and have thus far put it to good use. The payoff from the high school will come when Tewksbury students return to their community as citizens and taxpayers.

Support of the exemptions will ease the financial burden of the town for a few years. Time enough to allow some of the more pressing problems to be solved.

It will not be easy. But Tewksbury, with some planned professional programs in government can expand on its tax base, and enjoy an increase in tax revenues from a source other than just housing.

But, that can only be done with the proper tools. And one of those tools is a bright financial picture.

A financial picture brighter than the current one can be assured by exempting the sewer and high school addition bonds.

Dynamics Research Corp. wishes to buy about 30 acres of Wilmington Water Dept. land north of Route 125 at the Andover town boundary. In this chart of water flow, prepared by a study for the Water Department, the Wilmington land is shaded. The North Reading land is black. A ridge is shown northerly of Route 125. To the north of that, water flows toward Andover, as shown by arrows. Southerly of the ridge, water flows toward the Browns Crossing pumping station. North Reading has a well just to the northeast of the Wilmington land. Chairman George Allan of the Water and Sewer Commissioners expects to tour the land Thursday, with officials of the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE).

Two questions on sale of land to DRC

There were two questions last Thursday at a meeting of an ad-hoc committee in the Wilmington water treatment plant off Butters Row. The committee, entirely informal, has been formed to facilitate the sale of land near the Andover line to the Dynamics Research Company (DRC). The land is owned by the Wilmington Water Department, which in itself is a separate corporation, entirely owned by the town.

One person was present from each of the committees or boards that could have input, and principal assessor Anthony Krzeminski was there to represent the board of assessors. His purpose is to evaluate the property which DRC proposes to purchase.

The big question was the possible reaction of the State Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) to the sale of the land. DEQE could block such a sale, if it chooses. The underground water does not flow toward the Wilmington well fields, but does flow in the direction of a North Reading well.

George Allan, chairman of the water and sewer commissioners volunteered to be a one man committee to get that answer. Mr. Allan is professionally a designer and engineer for sewer and water systems. He should be able to get the answer, he said, in a week.

The second question, raised by Arnold Blake of the planning board was answered by Selectman Rocco DePasquale.

Mr. Blake, a practical sort of person, raised the question about an auction of the property, instead of merely selling it to DRC. Under ordinary circumstances such a question is valid. Blake believed this was the way for the town to get the highest price possible for the property.

DePasquale answered it.

This land, if it is sold, will be sold by the town meeting, he said. The idea of selling the land did not originate with any officials of Wilmington. The original proposal to buy came from the DRC company, who had in turn gotten the idea from statements by Larz Neilson (Town Crier publisher).

As far as DePasquale is concerned, the town meeting will make the decision, and on a price that is certified to be the "market value" of the land. There will be no auction, he said, unless conditions are changed, an event of which he wants no part.

The Town of Wilmington is not trying to sell the land, DePasquale said. The town will sell, however, to DRC, who is proposing to buy. To do this the proposal has to be proper and in order and the town meeting will make the final decision.

Flag stolen

The U.S. flag means different things to different people. For someone in Wilmington, it means an opportunity to steal.

The Dyas family of Glen Road was shocked last weekend to find that someone had stolen the flag from the flagpole in their side yard.

To add insult to injury, not only was the flag taken, but the halyard was cut. The thief also trampled some plants.

School committee rejects report

The Tewksbury School Committee, by a 3-1 margin, voted Wednesday to accept the findings of the so-called Andersen Report, but also voted, by the same margin, not to enter into a phase two "service improvement study" of the system's non-academic areas.

Saying that the $7500 report didn't present "anything we didn't already know," Committee member Jim Sullivan motioned to accept the findings, have the school committee determine which of the firm's 11 recommendations, if any, would be implemented and reject the more detailed and more expensive phase two study.

"I don't see how we can throw another $20,000 to the Andersen Company to find out more things we already know and I for one will vote against it," Sullivan said.

Committee members Louis Carciotti and Sonja Cuneo supported Sullivan's motion while Chairman Tom Cooke voted against it. Committee member Carol Wareing left the room just minutes before Sullivan made his motion shortly after 11:00 p.m.

The vote came at the close of a well attended special meeting in the Dewing School cafeteria to discuss the Andersen Report.

A large contingent of both public and private school parents attended the meeting to express their views on the firm's top ranked recommendation.

The firm had pinpointed the school committee's $200,000 private school transportation account at the top of their list for recommended areas to cut. The firm recommended "an objective study be undertaken to review the alternatives (to private school transportation) in order to reduce expenditures."

After interviewing several top administrators and principals the firm concluded that "Tewksbury currently delivers what is equivalent to the maximum level of service provided by any school department in Mass."

They presented the committee with several options for curtailing the service. Those options ranged from elimination of the service to providing central pick-up for what is currently a service that pick-ups some 582 private school students on several bus routes in town.

Little of the firm's other 10 recommendations were addressed, but some committee members did and citizens expressed their desire to hire an assistant for Assistant Superintendent Business John Ryan.

Such a post was filled by Frank Antonelli, Jr., who left the Tewksbury system to take the business manager's position in the Wilmington schools. The post has been vacant since Antonelli left.

But, the greater part of the meeting was spent discussing the committee's $200,000 private school busing account.

Private school busing has been a bone of contention for a group of public school parents for some time. They advocate either doing away with the practice or taking the funds for it out of the school budget and funding it as a special line item in the overall town budget.

The public school parents feel the money given to the school committee should be used to educate the children in the public school system.

They were supported Wednesday night by the Tewksbury Teachers' Association (TTA). The TTA's executive board had unanimously voted earlier last week to support cuts in the account if a bonding exemption fails at the polls this Saturday and the school committee budget undergoes further cuts at a special town meeting on June 28.

The TTA's position was taken in an effort to curb any future teacher layoffs in the public system. TTA President said the union supports cuts in private school busing before cuts in the teaching staff for the public schools.

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC), an independent group of parents who make advisory statements to the school committee, also supported the public school parents and asked the committee to accept the report's recommendations, each of which carried a priority ranking, "as they were presented."

However, parents of some of the 640 private school parents, objected to any cuts in the account and argued that the service, which amounts to a $316 per student, is all they ask in return for their tax dollar. The private school parents also argued that there would be an influx of students back into the public system if private school busing were eliminated. That influx, they say, would negate any savings by cutting the service.

Private school parent Charles Coppola presented a breakdown of cost figures and said any savings realized by cutting private school busing would soon be wiped out when students return to the system.

He said he conducted a survey of private school parents and found out 58 percent would send their children back to public school if busing were cut. He said he was provided with figures showing it cost $2147 to educate a pupil in the public system in 1980-81.

Should 58 percent, or 338 of the 582 private school students currently bused return to public school, he said, it would cost the system $725,686 to educate them. He subtracted the $182,648 cost of providing buses from that figure and said it would wind up costing the system $543,648 to educate the 338 returnees.

When asked to present their positions on providing the service, the committee majority said they favored it.

The Wilmington Company of Minutemen held its annual Liberty Pole ceremony on Sunday afternoon at Rotary Park. Based on the Liberty Tree of Colonial times, the Liberty Pole is intended as a show of defiance to the King of England. The Minutemen parade from the Common to Rotary Park, drawing the pole on a set of wheels. At the park, a stocking cap, worn by the captain, is put atop the pole, and it is then raised.

The Liberty Pole ceremony was highlighted by the presentation of a Order of Paul Revere Award to Frank Curley of Hanover Street. A longstanding member and past captain of the Wilmington Minutemen, he is now a major in the Massachusetts Council of Minutemen. The citation, signed by Gov. Dukakis, gives Frank the right to exceed the speed limit, on horseback, between sunset on the night of April 18 and sunrise on April 19. Reading the citation is Minuteman Capt. Bob Paulsen. From left, Dorothy Lafionatis, grand dame of the Wilmington Minutemen, Frank Curley, and Gen. John Vann of the Mass. Council of Minutemen.

Gillis proposes housing for couples on town-owned land

Danny Gillis, the newest member of the Wilmington Housing Authority, has started a movement toward providing housing for young married couples. He has been in consultation with the planning board. It is his belief that there is town-owned land, suitable for 20 to 40 homes, as a subdivision. Gillis envisions a non-profit organization to build the homes.

Presumably he has a source for the finances.

If he can find the land, and if other items work out as he hopes, he envisions homes for young people costing from $30,000 to $40,000. The homes would be on 10,000 or 20,000 foot lots depending on the zoning.

There is a firm in New Hampshire which can provide the homes Gillis seeks if he can find the finances and the land. The homes are delivered, already constructed (modular). A 960 square foot home, ready to go on a foundation and 90 percent complete would cost, he is told, $25,000. One hundred percent complete, the cost would be $27,500.

The homes have a kitchen, living room, bath and three bedrooms. There are three such homes already in existence in Wilmington, two off Shawshen Avenue. They have good structure. The wall insulation is R14, and the ceiling is R37.

The Wilmington Planning Board, on June 14, knew of no suitable site in Wilmington. The only site members could think of is the old abandoned gravel pit by the North Woburn line, off Main Street.

THOSE SIX-YEAR MOLARS

If you have a youngster who's past his sixth birthday, it won't surprise you when he begins to lose his front teeth. But a lot more is happening in his mouth than you realize. For one thing, his six-year molars are beginning to erupt. These are the big back teeth so important for chewing and maintaining proper teeth and jaw relationship. Some people may think they are "primary" molars to be replaced later like the child's other "baby" teeth. But they're not. They're permanent teeth, and with proper care, should last a lifetime.

The condition and shape they're in when they erupt are especially important, and should be checked carefully. Among other things, these six-year molars help determine the shape of the lower part of his face. They can also have a direct effect on the position and health of his other teeth.

If they come in crooked, for example, this can throw his other teeth out of alignment. This not only affects his chewing efficiency but the shape of his mouth and tendency toward tooth decay.

Patten Library seeks volunteers

The Tewksbury Patten Public Library is looking for adult volunteers to help with summer programs.

There are many duties volunteers can perform. The library needs people to run a movie projector during the weekly Thursday afternoon movies. Also needed are people who have craft ideas and want to share them with small groups of children. This would involve showing the children how to make and do craft projects of one kind or another. The children would be required to supply their own materials for all projects.

In addition to craft ideas, people with hobbies - such as, needlepoint, woodworking, knitting, or stamp and coin collecting - are also welcome to share their work or collections with children and explain how they became involved in their hobbies.

The library needs people who have anything to offer so that the success of summer programs for children can be realized. Anyone who is interested in helping out, can contact Assistant Library Director Mrs. Moore at the library, 851-6071.

Shriners hospitals are a ray of hope for children

by Debbi Michals

The eyes are piercing. They gaze out of the small, scarred face with sadness, as if they somehow know all the suffering of the world. They are the young eyes of a child whose entire body has been badly burned so that all that seems to be left are the eyes. But they tell the whole story of how he once sat happily at play and knew nothing of fear or pain, yet now he must begin every day with both these feelings. And the eyes that should only know joy search desperately for an answer, trying hard to understand what has happened and what will happen to him.

For years the Shriners have been the answer. Their hospitals have provided free care to children under 18 who suffer from burns or orthopedic problems. And their research has provided a new hope for the treatment of burn victims everywhere.

The Shriners began in 1872 as an offshoot of the Masons, a fraternal organization of men similar to the Elks or Knights of Columbus. In fact, before a man can become a Shriner, he must become a Mason first. Once he has obtained the highest rank in Masonry, he can ask to become a Shriner.

The Shriners were originally organized to break away from the serious and ritualistic nature of the Masons. Instead, the Shriners wanted to have more family-oriented social activities, and so in keeping with the idea of fun, they adopted a Middle East theme for their group and founded the Mecca Temple in New York. Since that time, every Shrine temple and every Shrine activity has been named or based on a city, place, or event in the Middle East.

Currently, there are about 1,000,000 Shriners in 185 Shrine temples across the United States, Canada, Mexico and the Republic of Panama. In Massachusetts, there are two Shrine temples. The Aleppo Temple in Wilmington was founded in 1882 in Boston, but moved its home to Wilmington in 1977. It was the 13th Shrine Temple to be given a charter, and according to member Harold Foley, it is a rather large temple with about 14,000 members.

Although the Shriners were originally founded on the idea of fun and fellowship, they began to become involved in charitable ventures very early in their history. Foley said between 1872 and 1922 there were no official Shrine hospitals; however, various temples were supporting different philanthropic endeavors. In 1918, he went on, there were so many Shriners and so much money in their treasuries, that they decided to sponsor one official charity. By 1920 it was agreed to start hospitals for children with orthopedic problems and to provide that service free of charge. Currently, there are 18 orthopedic hospitals across the country, with a new one to open in Tampa, Florida in 1984.

About the time that first orthopedic hospital was founded many children were suffering from orthopedic problems due to polio. With the Salk vaccination, Foley said, there were great reductions in orthopedic problems, and there were actually empty beds in the Shriner hospitals for the first time. The Shriners then met with the surgeon general and asked what he thought they should do about the extra space in their hospitals. The surgeon general recommended that they attempt to treat burn victims since there was so little known about this problem.

In 1966, the first Shriners Burns Institute was founded in Galveston, Texas. There are now three burns institutes across the country; one in Boston, one in Cincinnati, and one in Galveston, each with 30 beds and caring for over 2000 children.

At the time the first Shriners Burns Institute was founded very little was known about how to treat burn victims. However, doctors at these institutes made many new discoveries. In 1968, Foley said, the chances of survival for a person with 50 percent burns on his body were very slim. Nowadays, they are successfully treating people with up to 90 percent burns. In fact, in 1982 only one patient died as a result of serious burns.

There were three major discoveries in the treatment of burn victims, all of which occurred at Shriners hospitals. First of all, they learned that the reason many people weren't surviving from their burns was because infections would develop. When a person is first brought in for burn treatment, the burned and scarred layers of skin are removed, Foley said, and a new layer of skin taken from a relative or from the hospital's own supply is put over the open area. That leaves the person's body virtually exposed to any germs that may be in the air. To prevent against the threat of infection, they developed something known as the Bacteria Control Nursing Unit (BCNU), which is merely a bed in a plastic enclosure with a vent at the bottom which purifies the air inside the unit so that the person is never exposed to any bacteria at all.

Next, they began to develop what is known as the skin bank. Because skin is always needed to help these burn victims, they developed a way to freeze skin in liquid nitrogen and store it until it is needed. Some of the skin is taken from cadavers at the Harvard Medical School, and some of it comes from relatives of patients.

Last, they developed immunosuppression. When the new layer of skin is placed on the burn victim, often his body will reject it as foreign. This temporary skin, however, is very important to the healing process, so they discovered a way to keep the body from rejecting it.

All Shriners hospitals have three missions: patient care, research, and teaching. When their doctors make a new discovery, they pass this information on to other doctors in hospitals around the world.

Of course, running the Shriners Burns Institute or any of the Shriners hospitals is very expensive. It cost approximately $100,000,000 to run their 21 hospitals last year, with $7,000,000 spent on each of the Burns Institutes alone. Since Shriners refuse to charge their patients, the money has to come from outside sources, mainly fund raisers and $5 per year from each member's dues.

The big money-maker for the Shriners hospital since 1925 has been football games. There are 53 scheduled football games per year, Foley explained, with the big one being the all American college game in January.

The Shriners Aleppo Temple held their first big football game in 1979 which divided the state between the north football all stars and the south football all stars. The game will be played this Saturday, June 25, at Boston College, and all the proceeds go directly to Shriners Hospitals. In fact, Foley said, the Shriners are the only organization that can boast that 98 cents of every dollar they earn goes directly to helping the children in their hospitals, with only two cents spent on administrative costs. On Saturday, he added, they hope to earn over $40,000.

The players are selected based on their scholastic and athletic achievement, said Sheila Watnick, a spokesperson for the Shriners. They have to have made a league all star team or a major newspaper's all scholastic squad to be selected to play in the Shriners game. They also must have high grades in school. This year, Ed Olshaw of Wilmington and Charlie Healey of Tewksbury will be playing in the game.

There are other fundraisers held by the Shriners throughout the year including circuses and rodeos, but their big favorite, Foley said, is the football games because they are played by children. The motto of these games, he went on, is, "Strong legs run that weak legs may walk, and burned children may play again." All the players selected for the games are taken on a tour of the Shriners Burns Institute in Boston so they can see who they are playing for, Foley explained.

Despite all the work the Shriners do with burn victims, Foley said, the best way to treat burns is to prevent them. Most burns happen to children with the main causes being scalding. Over 75 percent of all burns can be prevented, he said, and the Shriners have recently begun a program of television ads designed to teach and remind people to prevent burns.

Then in the second half the Apollos came on strong with two quick goals, one by Jay Silvia and the other by Rich Sinopoli. It looked as though a tie match would result until late in the second half, when Jimmy Perrin booted a long shot into the Apollos' net for the winning goal.

Great games were played by Scott Niles and Kelly Conway on defense and Peter Gay and Kenny Malomo at wing for the Maniacs. David Caprigno at halfback for the Apollos played a fine game.

Fine games from Corrie Golen and Nick Guzley on defense and Kellie Sills and Richard Prendergast at halfback for the Rogues in this well played game. The Surfs played an excellent game, especially in light of the fact that they had only 11 players, so there were no substitutions made in the terrible heat.

representing 20 schools. Again this year, John Doherty, newly appointed head football coach at Curry College, will lead the crowd in the singing of the national anthem. Throughout the evening the well-known Shriners clowns will entertain in the stands.

The Championship Hull Marching Pirates, under the direction of Bob Corcoran, will perform during halftime. Since its formation in 1976, this marching band has won 342 local, state and national awards and holds 27 titles. In 1978 it was the only official high school band represented at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas. Members of Hull's color guard, the Gold Guard, carry rainbow-designed flags and rifles. All of the band's equipment is decked in rainbows and the group's theme song is appropriately 'Over the Rainbow.'

The introduction of this year's Football King and Queen will culminate the halftime activities. Eleven-year-old Football King Sean Nolan of Magnolia and 14-year-old Celeste Baker of Swampscott, both outpatients at the Shriners Burns Institute, are two of the youngsters helped by events such as the Shrine Classic.

For the fourth year in a row, Converse, Inc. of Wilmington is the game's official sponsor. Also coming aboard as sponsors this year are Wilmington's Sweetheart Plastics, Inc., Division of Maryland Cup Corporation, and Shedad Grotto of Brockton. Sweetheart's President Sam Shapiro explains: "We were extremely impressed with our tour of the Shriners Burns Institute, seeing first hand some of the miracles being worked on injured children. We're not doctors or scientists, but we hope that by our financial assistance this year, we can be a part of the exciting medical advances happening there."

Football fans unable to attend the game can watch the excitement on Boston's WLVI-TV (Channel 56) beginning at 7:10 p.m. WRKO sportscaster Dan Davis will once again report the play-by-play activities, and for the third year in a row, the Boston Globe's schoolboy sports editor Larry Ames will give the color commentary.

The Fifth Annual Shriners High school football Classic is co-sponsored by the Shriners of Aleppo Temple and the Massachusetts State High School Football Coaches Association. Game Director Jim O'Connor, a recent inductee into the State Football Coaches Hall of Fame, comments: "The competition is still because, since the game's inception in 1979, both the Shriners North and the Shriners South teams have claimed two victories apiece. However, because of the wonderful cause which the game represents, it's one game that everyone wins."

Hospital Day

The Boston Breakers announced that July 3 will be celebrated as Mass. Hospital Day when all state hospital employees, showing a qualified identification card, will receive a discount when attending the game with the New Jersey Generals on July 3 at B.U.'s Nickerson Field.

There will be a special discount window at the field where tickets for $12 will cost only $8, with four tickets to be allowed for each purchaser. The offer includes all employees at Tewksbury Hospital.

Free soccer clinic

The Soccer Farm will present a free clinic for soccer coaches Wednesday, July 27 at the Pomfret School in Pomfret, Conn. A full day of soccer discussion, rules interpretation and observation of the camp program and techniques is planned beginning at 9:15 a.m. and ending that evening after dinner. There is no charge, but the number of participants will be limited to the first 100 registrants. Some overnight accommodations will be available.

The coaches session will emphasize teaching soccer fundamentals to young soccer players. Clinic directors Jim Kuhlmann of Fairfield University and Jim Kaufman of Curry College will offer their approaches to developing soccer basics. Soccer coaches in youth programs should find this a most beneficial clinic to attend with its emphasis on the young player.

The Soccer Farm, now in its tenth year, offers sessions for boys and girls ages eight to 21 during July and August at the Pomfret School. Registrations are still being accepted for these sessions. For more information on the sessions and the coaches clinic, write Jim Kaufman, 101 Oak Street, Wellesley, Ma. 02181 or phone (617) 237-1335 evenings.

Events include track and field, road running, volleyball, basketball, soccer, diving, swimming, synchronized swimming, rowing, weightlifting, wrestling, gymnastics and cycling.

The Rangers slipped by the Dodgers 7-6, behind the pitching of Tracy Danner and the bat of Sharon Hanke.

The Reds beat the Cubs for their first win of the season, and the Braves topped the Angels with Kellie Adams and Karen McLaughlin supplying their hitting power.

The Rangers toppled the Giants, with Lisa McLean slamming out a homerun along with Mary Ellen Edwards.

Glad hands Members of rival Wilmington tee-ball teams shake hands following a game last week.

Tewksbury squeaks past Wilmington, 12-11

Tewksbury's freshmen softball team was beaten last week, 12-11 at Wilmington. The girls were winning until the bottom of the sixth, when the combination of Wilmington's hits and Tewksbury's errors gave Wilmington a 12-9 lead. Tewksbury managed to get two runs on two hits and a walk, but it was not enough to catch the Cats.

The girls also played the Junior High School teachers last week. The girls suffered an upsetting 8-7 loss, but the game had several interesting hits, including a smashed grapefruit and homeruns by two teachers.

The girls won at Greater Lawrence May 16 and beat the home squad in the rain, 18-11 in five innings.

Lawrence traveled to Tewksbury on the May 18 and was beaten, 11-3. The Tewksbury defense, which has improved with each game, allowed only seven hits. Providing three hits apiece for the home team were Karen Smart, Chris Kearns, Chris White and pitcher Kristen Doherty. Karen Hennessy, Lisa Fleury and Sue Downey each had a pair of hits.

June 23 Tewksbury hosted undefeated Methuen and beat them, 4-3. Kristin Doherty was the winning pitcher. Behind her the Tewksbury defense played almost flawlessly, allowing only three hits and turning two double plays.

Losing 3-1 in the seventh, Chris White led off with a bunt and Dawn Tumenas and Karen Hennessy followed with walks. Jean Sullivan then hit a single to score Chris and Dawn and tie the score. Pam Brothers reached on a Methuen infield mixup to load the bases again. Kerry McLaughlin came on to lash a single to score Karen with the game winning run.

Traveling to Dracut May 25, the girls won, 21-5. Tracy Danner was the winning pitcher backed by a solid infield of Kerry McLaughlin, Chris Kearns and co-captains Michelle Pilato and Sue Downey. Chris White in centerfield made some excellent catches and contributed to one of Tewksbury's double plays.

Every girl who batted had at least one hit. Getting four hits was Chris Kearns, while Dawn Tumenas, Kerry McLaughlin, Chris White and Sue Downey had three apiece. Michelle Pilato and Karen Smart had two hits each.

Astros were Nick LaPierre, Mike Balsamo and Mark Femino. The good defense was supplied by Jeff Foresta, Brian McAdden and Bob Bussey.

Doug Debie of the Mariners played a very good game at second base. Offensive standouts were Eric Mueller and Herb Delaney. Also playing well on the defensive end were Alex McNeil and Breet DeVeau.

Mets 16 Rangers 13 The Mets third inning rally proved to be the game winner, as they came from behind to beat the Rangers 16-13 last week in Tewksbury National Minor League action. Sal Reitano had three singles to help lead the attack. Other offensive standouts were Joe Mason and Richie Souza. Defense was supplied by Erin Sullivan, Jamie Martin and Bill Ramsey.

The Rangers' Keith Leahy came through with two good singles, while Robbie McGrath had three singles and a grand slam. Defensive standouts were Mike Minor, Chris Dick and Jeremy Schutz.

Twins 14 Rangers 11 The Twins' offense came from Tom Emerson, David O'Keefe, Jimmy Carroll and Tommy Callahan. Defensive standouts were Missy Carroll, Scott Boutwell, Brian Smith and George Bartlett.

The Rangers' offense came from Eric Levreault, Jason Loggrippe and Craig Loggrippe. Also playing well on the defensive end were Kerry Mathus, Jeff Venuti and Jesse Sawyer.

Students tour Williamsburg, Virginia

On June 7, 232 students and 20 chaperones from the West and North Intermediate Schools in Wilmington began the 10th annual field trip - this year traveling to Williamsburg, Virginia and Washington D.C.

The first day was spent at Williamsburg and was highlighted by an extensive guided tour of the restored area. In the afternoon, students had the opportunity to return to

Bus driver commends students

The following letter was sent to the North Intermediate School by one of the bus drivers on the Williamsburg trip. He is employed by the Carroll Bus Co. of Chestnut Hill.

Dear Sir,

I have just had the privilege of meeting some of the students from your school during a recent trip to Williamsburg, Va. Their conduct and behavior were a credit to you, your faculty and your school, but most of all to the students themselves.

I would also like to say a special "thank you" to the students and chaperones who were on bus one. Their cooperation and behavior were great. Too many times people will write and complain about some of the things kids do. I felt that it was time to write about a group of kids whose behavior and character was exceptional.

I have been driving a bus for over 16 years, and this group of students was one of the best, if not the best, I have ever seen.

Once again, I would like to say "thank you" to the students and the chaperones.

Yours truly,
Robert J. Devereaux,

Hospice nurses-clergy meet

STONEHAM A large class of Visiting Nurse Hospice volunteers and community health nurses who care for Hospice patients attended a presentation by four clergymen on the spiritual aspects of death and dying at the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East's Stoneham headquarters.

Sponsored by Middlesex-East and two other visiting nurse organizations - Medford and Melrose - Visiting Nurse Hospice is currently into the fourth session of its second volunteer training program.

Dual focus of this informational session was on specific, concrete ways Protestants, Catholics and Jews view death, bereavement, and on basic human needs which are basic spiritual needs of both patient and caregiver.

Clergy who served as discussion leaders: Brother Richard O'Brien, of Hospice Collaborative, Dedham, who presented an overview of spiritual needs.

Rev. Dayl Hufford, First Congregational Church, Reading, who gave the Protestant view that for every person it will be an individual concern. She also told of the funeral as a celebration of the person's life and a celebration of the promise of something after death.

Rabbi Michael Greenwald of Temple Beth Shalom, Melrose, explained Judaic customs and the difference between Reform, Orthodox, Conservative and Reconstructionist Jews as well as the service for the living and the prayer for the dead and the role of mourners.

Rev. Joseph Donahue of St. Charles, Woburn, highlighted the importance to Catholics of ab-

Hospice volunteers at funeral home

WOBURN Hospice volunteers from three districts viz Medford, Melrose and Middlesex-East recently were the guests of Woburn Funeral Director Edward J. Cantillon.

The funeral director explained to the dedicated volunteers the responsibilities of a funeral director to the deceased family and the various types of church services offered in the various religions.

Cantillon also explained such issues as the many legal issues involving a death, the medical examiner's jurisdiction, cemetery questions, cremation, the rights of the deceased, and the legal ramifications of the so-called "next of kin."

Questions were also asked by the Hospice volunteers on the more recent happenings in the funeral industry: general costs, upkeep and maintenance, the Massachusetts requirements for a funeral director's operation, family counselling as well as the emotional issues faced by a funeral director in the handling of grief with family members at the time of death.

Ruth Hilbrunner, R.N. of Woburn, the Director of the Medford Visiting Nurses, coordinated the visitation along with Hospice Coordinator Brenda Boschetti.

Present for the visitation to the Lynch-Cantillon Funeral Home were Edward Dunn, Richard Gilgun and Kerry Flaherty of Woburn.

Also present were Hospice volunteers Elaine LaCarubba, Patricia Groves, Genevieve McNamara, Maura Boermeester, Lynda Cedrone, Kathleen Fabiano, Louise Lane, Ethel Lavey and Marcia Maddock.

LOCAL HOSPICE VOLUNTEERS who work with the terminally ill patients recently visited the home of Woburn Funeral Director Edward J. Cantillon as part of their research efforts on behalf of the many cancer victims they assist daily.

The international organization grew out of the work of Katherine Cubler-Ross. The program began in England and a chapter has been formed in the Woburn, Winchester, Arlington area.

Aboard first nuclear powered cruiser

The USS Long Beach

By HOWARD SAMUELSON

CORONADO, Calif. - Compress the town of Stoneham into 700 feet, wrap 10,000 tons of structural steel around it, then put it all to sea, and you'd have a floating city much like the Navy's first nuclear-powered cruiser USS Long Beach.

But in addition to the Long Beach's post office, repair shops, radio and TV stations, the ship has another common thread with Stoneham.

His name is John Murray Jr. He's the 23-year-old son of Patricia Conza, 5 Overlook Ave., Woburn, and a 1977 graduate of Stoneham High School.

A petty officer second class, Murray is a nuclear-trained machinist's mate aboard the guided missile cruiser homeported here.

"I work in the auxiliary machinery room," says Murray. "I operate feed pumps and high and low air compressors. We make steam to operate the main engines."

Murray explains the basic difference between nuclear-powered ships and conventional ships "is the heat source," he says. "The Long Beach uses a reactor."

Conventionally-powered ships make steam using oil-fired boilers.

HEAVY CRUISER - The USS Long Beach enters San Diego Bay after Naval exercises off the southern California coast. The Long Beach was the first American cruiser built after world War II and the first nuclear-powered surface warship.

Murray has no apprehension serving aboard a nuclear powered vessel.

"I'm not afraid of nuclear power," says Murray. "Navy nuclear power operates above the standards of civilian nuclear power. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission provides civilian limits, but we operate by tougher rules."

Murray's interest in the Navy was based on a love affair with the sea.

"I love the ocean," says Murray. "I knew when I was a junior in high school I'd join the Navy. I was intrigued by ships, plus I knew the Navy would guarantee that I'd learn a trade."

After serving aboard the nuclear-powered guided missile cruiser USS Texas, Murray reenlisted aboard the historic USS Constitution in Boston and reported for duty aboard the Long Beach in 1982.

THE CLASS OF '66 celebrating the release of their new single, "Cruisin' To The Cape" on

Local band releases new single WAKEFIELD — The popular group The Class of '66 will play in Wakefield as part of the West Side Social Club Fourth of July Celebration. The concert will be at the bandstand on the common, from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Monday, July 4.

With the release of their new single, "Cruisin' To The Cape" B/W "Maybe She Would Dance With Me" on Musicorp Records, they have joined the ranks of other top bands from the Boston area to turn out highly quality rock & roll.

the sixties, but also have a fresh new approach and strong vocal harmonies.

While Feller hails from the lower Michigan area originally, the rest of the band are all Massachusetts natives. Lead singer Sam Donato, lives in Wakefield and bass player Ed Dupont is from Lynn. While both drummer, Joe Donahue and lead guitarist, Brett Gordon, were raised on the South Shore, Gordon has recently moved to Stoneham and Donahue decided to stay south of Boston and resides in Quincy.

The tunes, written by keyboard player, Mark Feller, are influenced somewhat by the rock of Drummer Joe Donahue says, "We play 60's songs, but we put all much of our own personality in them as we can. And the record just proves that we aren't just limited to the 60's. We can do and play other things. We don't live in a vacuum."

4th annual

Bike-a-thon for Jimmy Fund

The 4th annual Pan-Massachusetts Challenge (PMC), to be held September 10th and 11th is expected to raise more than $80,000 for the Jimmy Fund. Last year, the two-day 191-mile bikeathon from Old Sturbridge Village to Provincetown raised $60,000 and was the Jimmy Fund's second largest fund-raising event. The PMC has grown from just 36 riders in 1980 to 260 riders last year. This year, with Bud Light and WAAF-FM in Worcester providing major promotional support for the first time, PMC director Billy Starr is anticipating more than 400 cyclists.

The individual cyclists raise money for the Jimmy Fund, the fundraising arm of Boston's Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Each must donate a minimum of $350 — usually from sponsors — within two weeks of the conclusion of the ride. Last year forty percent of the riders donated more than the minimum. To reserve a spot in the PMC, individuals must send a $50 deposit and a pledge sheet with the names and addresses of the rider's sponsors. Registration closes Saturday, August 20 and will be limited to 500 riders. Those interested in the PMC can receive more information or a brochure by calling these regional coordinators: Billy Starr (Newton) (617) 965-9624, Amy Bresky (North Shore) (617) 352-7411 or 373-6600 or Linda Meservey (Worcester) (617) 791-7701; or by writing the PMC, 31 Hagan Road, Newton Centre, Mass. 02159.

Cyclists are provided food, drink and lodging for the duration of the ride (A PMC truck will carry gear for the riders). In addition, they will be treated to live entertainment during their Saturday night hiatus in Cedarville at Camp Bournedale. After completing the ride, everyone will be ferried back to Boston on the Provincetown II.

and then transportation is provided to Sturbridge for those requiring it.

Starr created the PMC after his mother, uncle and cousin all died from cancer. His efforts to make the PMC "New England's favorite way to contribute to its favorite charity" have been written up by the Boston Globe and have been highlighted by local media including WCVB-TV.

"The PMC is not meant only for bicycling fanatics," Starr says, "but for health-oriented individuals who want to use their bodies to benefit a truly worthy cause. In the process," he says, "we have a great time. It's a very warm affair and you can feel the consensus of emotion."

Starr is hopeful that the PMC will be fully subscribed this year and become the Jimmy Fund's largest fundraising event — something it fell just $6,000 short of being last year.

N.E. exports based on skilled personnel

The competitiveness of New England's leading export industries is based on skilled personnel, according to an article in the most recent issue of the New England Economic Review, published by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston.

Among New England's manufacturing industries the major exporters employ highly skilled workers and thus indirectly export the skills of such workers, according to Norman S. Fieleke, Vice President and Economist at the Bank. These skills constitute the region's true comparative advantage, Fieleke says.

Like Japan, which also lacks natural resources, New England must export diligence and expertise in order to attain a high standard of living. Having met the need to acquire such expertise, "the region is the richer for its lack of natural resources", Fieleke writes.

Your Air Conditioner

It's no secret that high temperatures and humidity take a toll on human dispositions. During the sizzle of summer a home air conditioner certainly helps keep the home and family members more comfortable.

• Have your air conditioner checked once a year before start-up.

• Dust the front panel frequently and keep the air filter clean.

• Don't block air flow with drapes or furniture.

• Keep heat registers and cold air returns closed or blocked off so that cooled air won't escape.

• On hot days, start the unit in the morning hours before the heat of day becomes too intense.

• Close blinds or drapes on the sunny side of house.

• Use a vent fan in areas where cooking, bathing or doing the laundry to pull out extra heat and moisture at its source.

Ask the gardeners

By Doc and Katy Abraham

Right when we should be enjoying our first crop of radishes, we find they are riddled with holes, apparently caused by tiny white worms found on the roots. If we sow seeds again, will the same thing happen? What should we do?

Cabbage maggots, which also attack radishes, are from eggs laid by a one-quarter-inch gray fly with black stripes. Often, early-planted radishes and those planted late in the fall are the most infested.

Why don't you try making another planting in a different area.

Some of the nonpoisonous methods of control are: covering the row with cheesecloth after planting to keep out the fly; dusting the seeds with wood ashes after they are planted to repel the fly; and soaking seeds in kerosene for half an hour before planting. The latter was passed along to us by an old-time gardener who has never had a radish maggot.

I notice that where the leaves of my largest African violet touch the edge of the clay pot, they get a brown spot and wilt at that point. My other violets are in plastic pots and never seem to have this trouble.

Clay pots are porous and fertilizer salts work their way into the pores. When they work into the rim of the pot, especially if the rim is rough, the contact with the stem causes a fertilizer "burn." This, in turn, harms the plant's "plumbing" at that point and the leaf wilts.

You can use a strip of smooth aluminum foil to fold over the rim so that the stem rests on the foil instead of the clay edge. Or you can slip the plant out of the pot and dip the rim in melted paraffin wax to make a smooth, coated surface on which the leaves can rest.

We have a garbage can full of wood ashes left from our fireplace. Could we use these on our vegetable garden? If so, could we apply it now, after our plants are already up?

If your soil has had no lime in the past three or four years, chances are you will not run the risk of making it too alkaline by applying a light coating of ashes in between the rows of your vegetables. Avoid using it on potatoes. It might make them scabby, since they prefer a slightly acid soil.

Another benefit is that ashes repel many insects. Slugs don't like to crawl over ashes, and a dusting over your tomatoes and other crops will repel flea beetles. Save some to dust around the base and stems of squash and cucumbers, just as they start to run or bush out.

Some readers have reported that they help repel the moth that lays the eggs of the squash vine borer. Incidentally, we're happy to have tips on natural pest control from our readers.

Is dishwasher safe to use on the plants in our garden?

Liquid detergents now used for handwashing dishes are safe to use on plants outdoors. Dishwasher water is also OK to use about once weekly, if it is run into pails and diluted with the rinse water, 1 part per 2 parts rinse water. You should dilute all the dishwasher with rinse water every few days, as some detergents are more concentrated than others.

Commissioned in 1961, the Long Beach is the Navy's first nuclear-powered surface warship.

Like a mini-variant of a self-contained city, the Long Beach incorporates all the necessary comforts of home for a crew of 1,000 including a gymnasium, soda fountain, barber shops, small stores, cafeteria, radio and television entertainment. The Long Beach can be sealed against the elements and operate virtually indefinitely with its nuclear power plant, though deployments rarely extend past six months.

The Long Beach recently returned from an extensive overhaul at the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard in Bremerton, Wash., where her 22-year-old structure was refurbished with new weapons like the Vulcan-Phalanx close-in defense system.

The mission of the Long Beach is to defend a carrier task group against air attack and is equipped with torpedo tubes to fend off submarine attack.

"There's no other ship in the Navy like the Long Beach," says Murray who feels his Navy decision was the right choice.

"The Navy has given me a chance to be on my own."

Learning disabilities reading clinics begin

To insure basic skills in the three R's — reading, writing and arithmetic — the Learning Disabilities and Reading Clinics (LDRC) of Arlington and Wilmington are once again offering individualized instruction throughout the summer.

Diagnostic testing, study skills, and S.A.T. and S.S.A.T. Preparation courses will also be offered at nominal fees, as the clinics continue to uphold their philosophy of serving the educational needs of the community at the lowest possible cost.

The focus of study skills instruction is to teach students to deal more effectively with their school work. Many students have good potential, but still need to master learning fundamentals such as outlining, notetaking, time management, and test preparation.

For S.A.T. and S.S.A.T. Prep., students learn strategies for tackling the Verbal and/or Math sections of the tests and apply them to numerous sample problems in class.

Students can be taught individually or in small groups.

LDRC teacher hold Master's degrees in their areas of concentration. Together, they have backgrounds in reading, math, learning disabilities, English, writing, and study skills. The clinics maintain a two-to-one ratio of students to teachers.

LDRC has ben serving area residents for five years. Students attend two hour classes once or twice per week in the mornings, afternoons or evenings. Parent conferences are held after testing to discuss the student's levels and formulate plans and goals for the student's sessions.

For information or registration, call Steve or Melissa Goerdt at 646-4049 or 631-5354.

CAMP FUNDS

The Eastern Middlesex Campership Fund was organized to enable youngsters in our area to have an opportunity to attend a camping program this summer which best meets their individual needs.

The funds were raised by the Eastern Middlesex Camping Fund Committee under the sponsorship of the Eastern Middlesex Council for Children. The committee held a very successful puppet show and raffle with Mary Churchill's famous Cranberry Puppets in February. Denny's Restaurant in Stoneham also made a generous donation to the fund from their Christmas Cheer program.

Children will be selected for camperships based on need by a screening committee. The purpose of the fund will be to help or assist, not fully fund, an application for summer camp.

If you are interested in applying for camp assistance for your child, please contact Dianne Hagan, Child Advocate, at Help for Children, 7 Lincoln Street, Wakefield (245-4239). All applications must be returned by no later than June 27, 1983.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

The personification of the saying, "Women are like pianos, 'Upright', 'Polished' and 'Grand'", is my friend of many years, Mrs. Joan Curran, of Woburn. She is a post office employee who told me her Uncle Charlie Mullins, a mailman in Winchester, told a dog owner that since he has been feeding his dog limburger cheese and garlic bread, his bark is now worse than his bite. I asked Bob and Peg Watkins, owners of a carpet outlet store in Wilmington, for a job installing carpets but they told me I'm not rugged enough. For every woman who made a fool out of a man - there are a thousand women who made men out of fools - and I'm one of them. The modern day miracles are what keeps the stitches in those designer jeans from coming apart. My aunt asked Leanne Locke of Burlington working at a travel agency in Lynnfield if she could get to Niagra Falls by Buffalo? "At your age," Leanne replied, "It would be better if you went by train." Suzie Arlen, of Tewksbury, was in a spelling bee in school not too long ago. She was asked to spell, "Mississippi." "The River or the State, Suzy asked?" "What difference does it make?" asked Miss Sullivan her teacher. "The River is longer," said Suzie. Many people brought flowers to the graves of their loved ones on Memorial Day. I saw a Chinese gentleman place food on a grave. I asked him, "when do you expect your deceased to eat the food you placed there?" He smiled and said, "When your dearly departed smell the flowers you just placed there." I buy American every chance I get - sometimes I wonder about my American made car - it has many faults. One that embarrasses me is that it talks to other cars at stop lights saying, "By the Japanese who made you and the ship Maru that brought you, you're no better car than I am, Hunka tin." Ray Giles, genial owner of a Woburn gas station is a "tank-full" person - he had a slow-poke attendant years ago who was so slow that a woman told him one day, "Now I know what they did with the lead they took out of the gas." Warren Church, runs ten miles a day - rain or shine. Many mornings he ran from his home in North Reading to the Food and Drug Lab in Winchester. I have a dog that's a runner - only he runs around and around in circles - don't be alarmed folks - he's a "watchdog," and is winding himself up. If you like this column and would like to see it continued, call your local paper and tell them. If you have advice to offer that's fine too. It was a common sight years ago to see grandmothers sitting down at spinning wheels. Boy how times have changed - today the only place you're sure to see little old ladies at spinning wheels is at Las Vegas. Casinos... a tip to golfers - wear two pairs of pants when golfing - in case you get a hole in one. You are a Real Executive when you dare hand back a letter for a third re-typing to a red-headed secretary.

Free copy of hurricane survival

The hurricane season is here. It starts in June and lasts through November and is especially dangerous to Atlantic and Gulf Coast states.

Some meteorologists believe that 1983 could well be a bad year for hurricanes born in the Atlantic Ocean or the Gulf of Mexico. Part of their concern is based on the wet weather and record flooding that has been seen in many of the hurricane-prone areas.

The Insurance Information Institute has published a Hurricane Survival Checklist which includes a hurricane tracking chart. It tells you in simple, easy-to-read form the steps to take before, during and after a hurricane. These steps will help insure your personal safety and protect your home and property.

Since 1958, there have been 32 hurricanes which have struck the continental United States, leaving in their wake 848 dead.

While there is nothing anyone can do to move a house out of the path of a hurricane, the Institute's Checklist offers some suggestions for protecting life and limb and reducing damage. These include:

—Leave low-lying areas that may be swept by high tides and waves. If your escape route is over a road likely to be covered by water or likely to be congested, don't delay evacuation any longer than necessary.

—If you live in a mobile home, check your tie-downs and leave for more substantial shelter. If your mobile home can be moved, take it to a safe area.

—Moor your boat or move it to a place where it will be safe.

—Board up your windows, protect them with storm shutters or place tape on them from one corner diagonally to another.

—Secure all outdoor objects that might be blown around that can become missiles of destruction in a hurricane.

—Have at least one flashlight in good condition, with extra batteries.

—Check your portable radio. This may be your only link with the outside world.

—Stock a generous supply of drinking water and non-perishable foods.

—If you rely on medicines of any kind, make sure that you have an extra supply.

—Be cooperative with local police and emergency personnel. It takes a team effort to clean up after a hurricane.

—Notify your insurance representative of any losses and leave word where you may be contacted.

—Make temporary repairs to protect property from further damage or looting. Use reliable contractors and keep all receipts for work done. Most insurance policies cover reasonable expenses.

—Be patient. Losses will be adjusted and claims paid as quickly as possible, but hard-ship cases are usually handled first. Also remember that policy forms differ and storm damage is often erratic, so don't assume that your settlement will be the same as your neighbor's.

It's important that you review your insurance policies now. Homeowners and most common business policies do not include coverage for damage caused by hurricane flood waters. However, if your community has met certain standards, this peril can be covered by special flood insurance from the National Flood Insurance Program. On the other hand, most residential and commercial property insurance policies do cover any hurricane wind damage that your property may suffer.

If you have any questions about your policy, contact your insurance agent or company representative. A complete inventory of personal property will help in obtaining insurance settlements and/or tax deductions for any losses. Store your inventory checklist and other important insurance papers in waterproof containers or in your safety deposit box.

Free single copies of the Hurricane Survival Checklist are available by calling the Institute, toll-free, 1-800-632-4954 or write to Insurance Information Institute, 44 School Street, Boston, Ma. 02108. Also available free is a brochure, "Taking Inventory."

Questions on Health from Consumer Reports

DEAR CONSUMER REPORTS: I am 80 years old and have this continuous pain and don't want to use strong drugs that are habit forming and expensive. I just got a few treatments with a pain-controlling device called transcutaneous electrical nerve stimulation, or TENS. Now I have to wear one continuously. The first unit I received didn't work well so I had it replaced.

But now I am sort of leery about using it. Is there any danger?

DEAR READER: Consumer Reports medical consultants say that

TENS is effective in some people for the relief of persistent pain. However its use must be supervised by a physician. Since side effects are nil, it may be worth a try.

USS Constitution to make annual turnaround cruise July 4th

The world's oldest commissioned warship will be the center of attention at noon on July 4 during the 1983 Boston harbor holiday festivities.

The 125-year-old frigate USS Constitution will leave her berth at the Charlestown Navy Yard, Boston National Historical Park at 10:30 a.m. on Independence Day, July 4, for her annual two-and-one-half-hour "Turnaround Cruise."

She will make her cruise in Boston Harbor and, at noon, abeam of Castle Island, render a 21-gun salute to the nation in observance of Independence Day.

The Constitution is turned around and berthed in the opposite direction once a year so her masts and "iron sides" weather evenly.

According to Commander Herman O. Sudholz, commanding officer of the Constitution, some 200 official guests will be aboard the ship for the voyage. Those guests will include sea cadets — the theme group for this year's cruise — from the New England area. Other invitations are sent to guests of the crew, those required by military protocol, local civilian and military dignitaries, media organizations and other non-profit organizations.

Any openings for the cruise that occur after all required invitations are sent out are filled by private citizens who have written to the Constitution asking for a place on the ship for the voyage. These names are picked at random from a hat before Independence Day.

A colorful flotilla will escort the Constitution on her return to the Charlestown Navy Yard. Owners of small private craft who will be boating and viewing the cruise from the water should be aware that the Captain of the Port, Boston, will be establishing a safety zone in the inner harbor from Buoy R-6" off of Castle Island to Pier 7 in Charlestown. No vessel will be allowed in this safety zone between 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. on July 4 without the express permission of the Captain of the Port, Boston. In addition, there will be a moving safety zone of 100 yards around the USS Constitution throughout her cruise. These restrictions will be enforced by several vessels acting on behalf of the Captain of the Port including Coast Guard, Coast Guard Auxiliary, Boston Harbormaster and U.S. Coast Guard Police units.

The best public viewing spots for the cruise can be found at Waterfront Park and Castle Island.

Making multiple roles easier for mothers

Working women find that although combining personal and professional lives is difficult, having a career continues to be a rewarding experience.

By Jane Anderson
Staff writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Boston

Working mothers would be the first to admit the challenges of balancing personal and professional lives. But most of them wouldn't have it any other way.

These are the findings of a recent national survey, in which only 12 percent of working mothers reported that they would prefer to be full-time wives and mothers. Similarly, less than one-fifth said they believed their husbands would prefer them to stay at home.

The study was conducted by two working mothers from Westchester County, N.Y., who looked at how other mothers in the work force felt about their lives and how they managed their many responsibilities. In their new book, "Mothers Who Work" (Ballantine Books, New York), Jeanne Bodin and Bonnie Mitelman define the basic challenges facing working mothers and their families, and suggest some solutions.

"The reality is there are a lot of women who work, and there are things that can be done to make it easier for them," says co-author Jeanne Bodin, a teacher with two daughters.

The findings were based on responses from 442 of 750 questionnaires and 25 personal interviews with middle-class working mothers across the country. In the sample, 70 percent of the women were between 35 and 54 years old and only 22 percent had less than a college education.

In practical terms, the survey respondents expressed a need for better child care, flexible work schedules, safe mass transportation for their children, community-run after-school programs, and more housecleaning services. They voiced concern over a lack of time for their husbands, family activities, and for personal care.

"Almost universally," the authors write, "women put themselves and their personal needs and interests far behind their professional and familial obligations."

Even with the majority of mothers in the work force, the authors found, many still feel atypical. Many women had to deal with an underlying sense of societal disapproval, even if they were working primarily for economic reasons.

"What makes things harder for working mothers is a general lack of understanding and support," the authors write. "They don't feel their plight is taken seriously. . . . Sometimes they infer from society's attitude that their working is a frivolous indulgence, an attempt to find selfish gratification when they should be home caring for children."

In reality, the authors point out, most mothers feel some guilt about working because they are conscientious, caring parents. "We found a very strong commitment to family," says Mrs. Bodin. "Most women plan very carefully to be with their children. It's not as if Mother goes off to work without any concern for Johnny."

Many of the women surveyed felt that at least one spouse should have a flexible schedule to accommodate the children's needs. They also said the greatest aid to working outside the home was living as close to work as possible. Many respondents, particularly single mothers, experienced difficulty in finding adequate child care.

Another major area of concern was home management. "The key to successful families, we found, were women who could set priorities: 'What can I do? What can someone else do? What can we skip?'" says Mrs. Bodin.

Husbands may be willing to do a household task when asked, the authors found, but will rarely initiate it themselves. "Men still haven't traveled from the expectations they were brought up with to the reality of the situation," she says.

A part-time clerical worker from Ohio remarked, "I have always believed the person liberated in women's lib is the man. As a woman takes on more financial responsibilities, she eliminates a lot of stress on the man."

Mrs. Bodin says, "Many of the women said their husbands were proud of them and were willing to share the economic burden." Yet, she adds, "Consistently the woman is the pivotal person in the house and responsible for keeping it running smoothly."

It's often difficult for a woman herself to give up the idea of the house as her own responsibility. But the authors found some mothers were able to operate on a principle of sharing in which the house is considered the family's responsibility, and not the mother's alone.

More than a third of the women surveyed indicated they did have support from their husbands in running the home, particularly in food shopping and meal preparation. A large majority of respondents did not indicate that children should help with household tasks, but those with children who did contribute felt that sharing family chores fostered a sense of fairness, independence, equality, and the satisfaction of accomplishing something essential to the family.

On a professional and community level, the authors conclude, taking individual steps is the most effective means for easing the pressures on working parents.

In the community, schools still assume there is someone at home in case of an emergency, school organizations are still dependent on available women volunteers, teacher appointments are scheduled during the middle of the day, and most activities and services that involve children and the household operate on the assumption that a woman is home during the day.

Although it is difficult to change an entire pattern, working parents have achieved some positive changes by negotiating alternatives themselves. A simple request to reschedule a parent-teacher conference from the middle to either the beginning or end of the day, for example, can prevent losing a half day of work.

Volunteer organizations could think in terms of ways they can make use of the business-related skills of working mothers such as calling on a mother's financial expertise in fundraising instead of asking her to bake cookies. Another mother might offer to print tickets and posters for a school play instead of making costumes. It's often up to parents themselves to suggest these alternatives, the authors emphasize.

In the workplace, working parents are learning to negotiate flexible-time or job-sharing arrangements on an individual basis by presenting realistic, workable plans that benefit both themselves and the company.

"If [upper management] in corporations would understand it would be to their benefit to provide on-site day care, I think they would have it," says Mrs. Bodin, who believes corporate changes to meet family needs will be initiated from within the organization rather than from the top. "Working men seeing the complexity of their wives' lives may begin to press for these issues."

'Almost universally, women put themselves and their personal needs and interests far behind their professional and familial obligations.'

— Jeanne Bodin and Bonnie Mitelman

Host a foreign student

The AYUSA Institute, through its local Community Counselor, Frank DeGeorge, will bring several international students to our suburban communities beginning in August of this year to participate in their Academic Year in the USA. A non-profit educational institution dedicated to international youth study, the AYUSA Institute operates both 5-month and 10-month programs for qualified overseas students between the ages of 15 and 19 who have high academic and language skills and an interest in American culture and family life. Students from Europe, South and Central America and the Orient have applied to attend school in our local school districts, and families wishing to explore the possibility of hosting one of them as a member of their own families are encouraged to contact DeGeorge for more details and information about the program. DeGeorge says that the major requirement for families who want to host a student is simply that of "open hearts and an active interest in young people of other cultures," and that those families are welcome to apply. Students on the AYUSA program are given a monthly allowance by the AYUSA Institute to cover their incidental expenses, and host families are given a monthly stipend to offset the costs of hosting students. Students are covered by medical and accident insurance, and are supported throughout the year by the Institute's staff and many Community Counselors across the United States who maintain close contact both with the student's natural parents and the sponsoring organizations overseas who have chosen and screened the students. The AYUSA program presents an intriguing experience in education not only for the student participants but also for their Host Families, friends, and the schools involved," says DeGeorge.

"What is really needed in a host family is a real desire to include the student as a member of the family. The student is still a young person and needs the love and support of a real family — not just a place to live for awhile."

DeGeorge says that families who are interested in hosting a student are encouraged to apply as early as possible, and may contact him at 438-5358 to ask for more information.
